Sustainable development factors and barriers in the property market
FRIDAY 23 OCTOBER 2020 | Session 1 - 09:30 AM / Session 2 - 11:30 AM (CEST)

ERES Industry Seminar

Our 3-hour Live Online Event will be held on Friday of 23rd October 2020 at 08:30 (London), 09:30 (Bratislava/Frankfurt) and 10:30 (Moscow).

The European Real Estate Society (ERES), Institute of Management of the Slovak University of Technology in Bratislava, Colliers International, and Slovak Green Building Council propose the organization of an ERES industry seminar on “A macroeconomic and real estate overview of the CEE region” and „Sustainable development factors and barriers in property market“ topics on 23rd October, 2020. The morning session of the seminar will examine the overview of the global and local risks that might impact the real estate business in corona times (focus on Industrial & Logistics sector).

The afternoon session will regard the sustainable development factors and barriers in the property market. In terms of the topic of session 2, we would like to create a discussion among a developer, a technology supplier, a researcher, and a certifier. Presenters should also have an overview of the CEE markets in terms of the objectives of the event and the expected audience.

SESSION 2

Topic: Sustainable development factors and barriers in the real estate market

11:30 – 12:50

Sustainable investment is about the responsibility and potential the real estate industry holds to reach climate and environmental sustainability targets. In a rapidly urbanizing world, the real estate industry lies at the centre of an unprecedented level of growth and activity. Sustainable property investments have developed from a niche concern to a mainstream product for new real estate developments and investment products over the past decade. Green buildings represent a significant share of Visegrad countries' development projects, which is expected to further grow. What are the challenges of investing in more sustainable buildings? Why we should consider sustainability when making investment decisions? Is it possible to quantify the effect of sustainable building practices? What are the consequences of the corona crisis?

In terms of the topic of session 2, we would like to create a discussion among a developer, a technology supplier, a researcher, and a certifier. Presenters should also have an overview of the CEE markets in terms of the objectives of the event and the expected audience.

Moderator: Hana Ovesná, Executive Director at Slovak Green Building Council (SKGBC)
