Article Approval Service (AAS) FAQs

What is the Article Approval Service (AAS)?

The Article Approval Service (AAS) is a platform for Approval Managers to verify eligible articles for APC coverage. Once an article has been editorially accepted for publication by a journal and the author has completed the identification process for eligibility, the article enters the AAS, where you can either approve or reject the article for coverage.
What is an Approval Manager?

The Approval Manager acts as the person who verifies articles for APC coverage. Once an article is editorially accepted and the author completes the identification process, the Approval Manager at your institution will receive an alert via email that a new article has entered the AAS for verification. Please get in touch with us if you wish to register as the Approval Manager for your institution.

How do I register and log in to the Article Approval Service?

In order to comply with GDPR, we require the Approval Manager(s) from each institution to register on our system themselves and create an account to access the Article Approval Service (AAS). Please refer to the AAS Registration Process document in your "Welcome Pack" and register your details on springer.com. Once you have registered, you will be assigned special user-rights to approve or reject articles.
