Educational Approach: Multi-Contextual Learning, Co-Creation	The program applies a team-based mentoring extending “needs based” support for individuals and the consulting teams that have been formed. Co-creation and learning from peers receives a high emphasis. Self-assessment using “Diary of Learning or Reflective Overviews” have proven to be an effective approach helping multi-contextual thinking. “Peer Evaluation”, “Client Feedback” are frequently used for monitoring performance and learning outcomes. Individuals are assigned to more teams across the four weeks. There is a conscious goal of ensuring participants remain out of their comfort zone, are able to cope with complexities of multi-tasking and project crises. For this reason one individual may be assigned to a higher number of projects
Assessment Blocks:	Systematic participation assessment (daily reports ), Submitted Project Documents Current State reports Peer Evaluations Client Feedback Showcase participation The Reflective Overview
Code of Conduct and Absence	(1) In case a participant leaves the program for three consecutive work days she/he loses Full-Time Project Consultant status (2) Depending on the reasoning, the program management may decide to reserve a partial position referred to as “consulting assistant” which does not lead to full credits or full certificate of participation (3) Note: Professional Behaviour on campus, in respecting business etiquette is handled with high sensitivity. The same applies for keeping within the socially acceptable boundaries off campus (4) Depending on feedback coming from Peers, Clients, Mentors and Program management in case of misconduct participants may receive second chances through a YELLOW CARD or otherwise a straight RED CARD consequently disqualified from continuing the program.
